Street food finale wraps up food festival

Taste buds were tingling as a street food finale brought a mouthwatering end to the St Albans and Harpenden Food and Drink Festival.

Crowds of around 12,000 people enjoyed fine food, cookery demonstrations and cocktail-making classes at Sunday's event, part of an annual celebration of the district's best locally produce.

There were more than 60 stalls selling a wide variety of food and drink and a pop-up outdoor restaurant run by Lussmanns.

Demonstrations were given by Phil Thompson from Thompson@Darcy's and cookery book author and chef Patti Sloley at the Aga Rangemaster Cookery Theatre, while staff from Mokoko bar also gave cocktail tips.
